

JESD Meets Tonight

Public Meeting on Teachers' Requests

A 61-page negotiations packet from the teachers in the Jefferson Elementary School District that has been the late-night page-turner for the members of the board will be open for public discussion at a meeting Wednesday.

The proposal from the Jefferson Classroom Teachers' Association will be unveiled at 8 p.m. at the board meeting held at 101 Lincoln Ave. in Daly City.

Most of the items have either been requested before or are current or discontinued board policy. The teachers are again requesting binding arbitration in grievances cases, according to Board President Beverly Forrester.

Man Dies, 3 Others Hurt in Freak Fire

A freak accident set off a fire Monday night that ignited a garage in Daly City like a bomb, killing one man and seriously injuring three others.

Had it not been for the heroism of two firemen, one of the three, whose escape was blocked by the kind of ornamental grillwork that the fire department recently has been campaigning against, would also have burned to death.

The fire department has reconstructed the unusual chain of events leading to the fire this way.

About 7 p.m., Gonzalo Demorales of 432 Citrus Ave. was working on his car. A friend, Merced Sanchez, 62, came into the garage to watch as he worked.

Demorales apparently was jacking up the bumper of the car and shoved a stand under it for support. The car slipped and came down on the stand, which punctured the gas tank, the fire department said.

In less than a minute, the gas had leaked along the floor toward the furnace and water heater, ignited and exploded them both, firemen said.

Sanchez apparently tried to escape from the quickly spreading fire by running around the side of the car but he was trapped against the wall and burned to death.

Demorales hurried upstairs and got his wife Margaret and their daughter out of the house safely.

But three men, including Demorales' son Vincent, 23, were watching television in a room behind the garage and were trapped, firemen said.

The younger Demorales and Gary Baptista, 22, of 48 St. Marks Court, managed to escape through the basement, but the third, Carlos Fernandez of 232 Mariposa St., apparently did not follow them out.

His arms extended through the decorative iron grillwork on the window of the TV room, Fernandez screamed for help as the flames spread to the room.

According to the fire department, he would have burned to death if two firemen — Robert O'Donnell and Charles McGee — had not put on airpicks and walked into the fire to carry Fernandez out.

Both Fernandez, who was burned over 40 per cent of his body, and Baptista, who was burned over the upper part of his body, were taken to the St. Francis Burn Center for treatment.

The younger Demorales is in San Francisco General Hospital with burns over 25 per cent of his body.

His mother was taken to Kaiser Hospital in Stock. Firemen estimated the damage to the house at about $15,000. The fire was contained in the garage because it had been sheetrocked, they said.

Filipino Unit Seeks DC Support

The Filipino-American Involvement League has submitted plans for a Filipino Self-Help Center to the San Mateo County Revenue Sharing Committee and is asking the Daly City Council for support.

The center would provide information, assistance, counseling, and referral to Filipinos in San Mateo County which is the only county in the Bay Area, they said, that doesn't offer Filipinos some type of assistance.

The group estimates that while the Filipino population in San Mateo County has increased from 5,976 in 1970 to approximately 20,000 in 1976, few Filipinos vote because they lack the knowledge about their voting rights.

The Hillside Homeowners Improvement Association is unhappy with present plans for a mini-shopping center planned for East Market and Third Avenue in Daly City, reported Lowell Durham, the association's director.

He said they believe that the large grocery store would serve the needs of the residents better than the present plans, which call for construction of a 10,800 square foot building housing six separate shops.

Apparently, part of their concern arises from the proposed widening of Hillside Boulevard, which will entail the demolition of the Hillside Market and butcher shop.

Residents apparently would like to see the market and butcher shop moved into the new shopping center.

The association also reported that after they finally got a curfew imposed on a former all-night car wash in their area, they don't want to see any more all-night or late-night businesses in their neighborhood, it's just too noisy, they said.

Talks were set up at the suggestion of mayor Al Teglia between the Association and the developer, Alta California Properties, Inc.

Daly City's Classified Service Rules and Regulations have been "de-sexed" to eliminate all traces of sex-tied language, it was reported.

New Worry for Bartenders

By JANET REINKA

Only 2 p.m., and already it is a blistering hot day in San Bruno.

But inside The Doghouse, a neighborhood bar on El Camino Real where the owner, Helen Price, sips a drink with the regulars, it is dark and cool.

"No, please, I have to go," says one man as the bartender sets up one more beer. He shrugs and takes a drink.

It's a familiar place, with garnishments as inevitable as an olive in a martini — chrome chairs and tables, a rushing, electric waterfall, and the slogans "Avoid Hangovers. Stay Drunk." Or "Never Trust a Man Who Doesn't Drink."

As at many bars and restaurants in California, however, things are a little less friendly at The Doghouse than they were when Helen Price went into business 14 years ago.

IN THE WAKE OF an increasing number of large judgments against bar and restaurant owners whose customers are involved in accidents, coupled with a huge jump in liability insurance rates, an edge of suspicion has entered into the once-friendly relationship between the bartender and his customer.

According to Helen Price, for example, The Doghouse was held liable in a suit when a customer three or four years ago killed a husband and wife in an automobile accident.

He was a little, old pensioner, a real nice guy," she recalls. "He came in at 6 p.m. and started to jabber. The bartender told him to leave. The accident happened many hours later. He could have been at a lot of other bars after he left here."

Her insurance man says the plaintiffs received $50,000.

California leads in both

Murder, Robbery Charged

An admitted transsexual who is accused of murdering a Daly City man and then traveling across the country using his car and credit cards was arrested Sunday after leading police to the man's body off the roadway near Reno.

Police credited the coordinated investigative work of officers in Rockland, Me., Placerville County and Daly City with unraveling the bizarre story of the apparent murder and robbery of Robert A. Thompson.

Thompson, 52, of Grandview Avenue, left for a weekend in Reno on June 12, planning to return the next day. Enroute he met Nikki Lee Diamond, 26, a self-proclaimed transsexual originally named Robert LeBlanc, according to police.

Police allege that Diamond shot Thompson three times in the back of the head in a clearing about 100 yards off Interstate 80 near Auburn and left, taking his car and credit cards.

About ten days later, Thompson's family reported him missing. According to police, invoices for the credit cards and cancelled checks then began coming in from Wyoming and Nebraska.

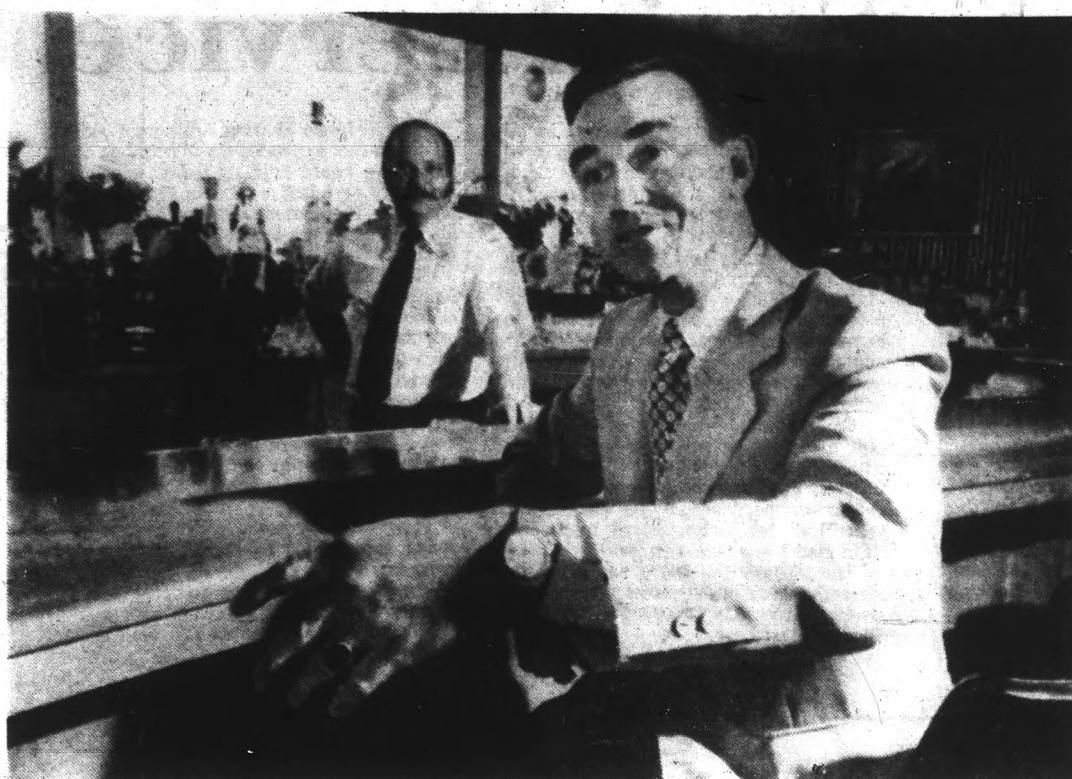

Suspecting foul play, the Daly City Police Department issued a nationwide teletype and pictures of Thompson.

July 13 they received a call from officers in Rockland, who had found Thompson's car and other belongings. In addition, they said they had received a check from a merchant countersigned by a Rockland resident. The check had been returned by the bank.

Through the resident, who is not a suspect, they allegedly identified Diamond, who was staying in Rockland. They interviewed her, joined by Daly City Lieut. Roger Austin and Det. Jim Mendias, and she agreed to show them where Thompson's body was, police said.

Police say they found Thompson's body Sunday. Diamond was arrested and charged with murder and robbery. She is awaiting indictment by the Placer County Grand Jury.

Det. Harry Lax is also involved in the investigation, which is continuing.

It's Gotten Out of Hand

Rudi Ish, owner of the El Rancho Restaurant in Millbrae, thinks the settlements for liquor-related accidents are too high. His bartender, Ike Newman (rear), says he cuts off customers who've had too much to drink. New customers might blink and wonder about their own limits — behind the bar is a glassed-in swimming tank billed as "one of the world's largest underwater windows."

NORTH COUNTY EDITION

THE POST

Vol 30, No. 29 DELIVERED EVERY WEDNESDAY MORNING WEDNESDAY, JULY 21, 1976

the size of judgments the 14 states in the country which hold tavernkeepers liable — but not in the legal sense "responsible" — for the actions of customers who have had too much to drink.

And the liquor industry fears that, following the well-publicized award of $1.9 million to actor James Stacy in May by a Los Angeles jury, lawsuits will make the neighborhood bar as passe as the speakeasy.

Stacy lost his left arm and leg because his motorcycle was knocked over by a drinking driver. The relatives of Stacy's passenger, who was killed, also were awarded $400,000.

Their lawyers convinced the jury that a "reasonable person" would not have continued serving drinks to the driver and that the additional alcohol contributed to the accident. The lawyers for the cocktail lounge probably will appeal.

March 19, Fireman's Fund Insurance Companies cancelled the three-year policies of several thousand bars and restaurants that are members of the San Mateo Hotel and Restaurant Association. The Santa Clara Bar and Restaurant Association, and the California Dining and Beverage Association.

Among them are popular local spots such as Bertolucci's, Artichoke Joe's, the New Southern Restaurant, Ken's House of Pancakes, Val's Redwood Room, Romano's Tarr & Feathers, Beardsley's, Gold Rush and the Iron Gate Restaurant, according to their insurance agent.

THE COMPANY SAYS, however, that the decision does not reflect on any individual business. According to Edgar Lyon of Fireman's Fund, there were mitigating circumstances and the company had to drop the policies of all the members of the association. He would not say what the circumstances were.

But Harry B. Krier III, a Burlingame man who was the insurance representative for many of the cancelled businesses through a broker, Gurewitz-Fitzgerald, says the dispute involved contradictory claims about Fireman's Fund's underwriting rules. Gurewitz's organization went out of business when the policies were cancelled.

Krier, who recently was named a lobbyist for several liquor-related associations, said the tavernkeepers suddenly had to get re-insured at substantially higher rates, most through Market Insurance Co., a Los Angeles company that specializes in liability insurance. Lloyd's of London, through an agent, also writes such policies. A few opted to drop their coverage entirely.

At a popular singles bar on Van Ness Avenue in San Francisco, for example, the rate jumped $150 for three years to $8,475 a year. An owner of Bogart's in Burlingame says his insurance jumped from $1,500 over three years to $5,000 a year now.

And at the El Rancho Restaurant in Millbrae a three-year policy for $9-10,000 was cancelled. Now the owners say they pay $7,400 a year for liability insurance.

The tavernkeepers say the situation is as bad as the "malpractice crisis" for doctors.

"I THINK THE settlements have gotten way out of hand," said Rudi Ish, who owns the El Rancho Restaurant, a popular stop-off for airlines employees. "If we actually run someone's life, you can't compensate them anyway."

Ish and his bartender Ike Newman, say they regularly turn away customers who have had too much to drink. If worst comes to worst, they call a cab or put them in the nearby motel.

Sometimes people walk in and they look perfectly sober," Newman said. "It's hard to be sure how much they've had to drink someplace else. If I don't know that they're just going to go back to their motel room and go to bed, I'll cut them off."

According to the owners of Tony's Hofbrau in South San Francisco and Bogart's, suits against both for liquor-related accidents are pending.

Tony Bosnick claims the young man who came into his bar at 2 a.m. New Year's Day in 1975 was not involved in the accident.

Garbage Rate Hike

Audit Issue Resurfaces

By NANCY STENSON

Correspondent

Some Daly City residents still bristling over their City Council's decision to grant a rate increase to the Daly City Scavenger Co. without an independent audit have demanded a public hearing on the matter at the next regularly scheduled council meeting.

Impatient, claiming lack of council action, Julius F. Castellan of the Daly City League of Associations, and Roseanne Emerson of the Serramonte Homeowners Association, reiterated a request for an audit.

Their request had followed allegations by Dennis Sullivan, vice president of Capital Real Estate Management Co., the management firm for the Danica Heights Apartments at 500 King Drive, that the scavenger company had a 100 per cent annual profit and that shareholders were enjoying a comfortable salary plus dividends.

City Atty. Al Polonsky reminded Castellan and Mrs. Emerson that the council had passed the rate increase on the condition that should the independent audit, when it was made, reveal any discrepancies, the users would receive a refund.

Paul M. Hupf, representing the Daly City Scavenger Co. in this matter, told the councilmen that his clients would raise no objections to a "full and complete independent audit," although he was confident the rate increase is reasonable.

Hupf told the council that the scavenger company now faces some serious labor problems, including a possible strike.

Scavenger truck drivers, covered under the Teamster Union Local 350, are in the process of negotiating for wages that, if granted, over a two-year period would bring them from a salary of $18,000 a year to as high as $36,000 to $45,000 (including fringe benefits), said Hupf.

Additionally, he said, the company is confronted with the necessity of investing some $250,000 in capital equipment.

Polonsky said the audit is being delayed until the scavenger company can complete their labor negotiations to reflect present day costs and expenditures.

He assured the audience that no attempt was being made to avoid this audit.

Mrs. Emerson said there were a lot of people asking for the audit and asked them "Who do you represent them or us?"

She said she knew the company's costs would go up after negotiations, but did not understand why an audit couldn't be conducted now.

Castellan told the councilmen that 33 per cent of Daly City's residents are minorities and 25 per cent in the low-income category.

To them, he said, the $1 or $2 increase represents a lot of money and could mean they'd have to cut down on medicine or some other necessity.

Councilman McRobert Stewart, who had abstained when the council voted for the hike, because his brother-in-law is a shareholder in the scavenger company, said he thought the push for the audit reflected the impatience of some people with government and was a prime example of the slow but deliberate movement of government.

He added that the council's top priority was to serve the people's interest.

No Changes in Rules About BART Parking

A survey of Daly City residents living in the BART station area has revealed that there would be substantial resistance to the imposition of parking restrictions in that residential area, the City Council has been told.

The survey, mailed to 1,000 residents, drew only 150 responses, of which 53 per cent of those responding revealed they wanted no parking restrictions.

Thirty-five per cent favored a two- or four-hour parking restriction over a 12-hour span between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m., with 10 per cent indicating they favored no parking at all during that time.

A marginal two per cent favored the installation of parking meters.

The traffic committee, therefore, has recommended there be no changes in the parking regulations for that area.

The councilmen had toyed with the idea of issuing parking permits to residents of that area to allow them to impose some type of parking restrictions, but Polonsky told them it's a public street and legally he didn't think they could do that.

Councilmen at their next meeting will consider a revision to the city's Animal Control Ordinance to require proof of rabies vaccination prior to the issuance of a dog license.

This revision is being considered at the suggestion of the San Mateo County Department of Public Health and the Peninsula Veterinary Medical Association (PVMA), who have initiated a campaign to get all Peninsula cities to require proof of rabies vaccination before issuance of a dog license.

The report also stated that there are at least 4,000 reported animal bites in San Mateo County each year.

Man Sought in DC Stabbing Arrested

A man sought since June 4 for allegedly stabbing another man at a party in Daly City was arrested Tuesday on a routine traffic warrant.

Daly City police said William Glover, 19, of San Francisco, was one of six people in a car stopped on Mission Street at 2 a.m. Tuesday.

Glover allegedly stabbed Clayton Harada during a fight outside a party at 70 Margate St. Another man involved in the fight was immediately taken into custody, but police had been unable to locate Glover until Tuesday, according to their report.

'A Radical Departure'

County Social Service Unit Proposed

By BOB HEMINGWAY
San Mateo County Supervisor John M. Ward has proposed the creation of a community social services agency which could administer allocations of public and private funding of community social service programs in the county.

His proposal came after the Board of Supervisors spent Thursday listening to representatives of various social service organizations appeal for a share of $600,000 in federal revenue sharing funds the board is allocating this year for community based social service programs.

"The more I listen to all the problems of the poor and the struggling agencies in competition with other agencies, we ought to be talking about one facility," the supervisor stated.

A community social services agency would permit public and private funding organizations to operate out of the same facility with better coordination "and save us some money," Ward said.

There is a lot of vagueness in the present situation wherein some social service programs are partially financed both by private funding and public funding, and there is a scramble among a multitude of agencies for any available money, Ward said.

The supervisor said his proposal is "a radical departure."

"I'm talking cooperation of public and private (agencies) so we don't have to come back next year and the year after and hear the same thing. The present system doesn't make any sense," he added.

Supervisor Jean Fassler predicted that the situation will worsen next year with a cutback in funding.

Mrs. Fassler, who is completing her career on the board at the end of this year, told her fellow board members, "I'm glad I won't be with you."

The $600,000 the board has allocated for community based social service programs this year is $200,000 less than was allocated last year.

The Revenue Sharing Advisory Council which recommended the allocations on which the board held its public hearing Thursday reviewed a total of 67 requests and made recommendations on 59 proposals which sought a total of $1.38 million in funding.

The board is to make a decision on the funding recommendations at its 1978-79 county budget hearing Thursday, July 29, at 7:30 p.m.

A total of 47 speakers appeared before the board to comment on the advisory committee's recommendations, some to request that the recommendations be followed, others to seek increases, and some to request that the committee be overruled in instances where it had recommended no funding.

Advocates for some programs made visual appeals for continued funding of programs.

Two persons sat in the audience holding signs stating, "Vietnamese Need English Too" and "We need to read and write." A toddler wandered down the aisle of the supervisors' chambers with a sign bearing the words, "I Need Child Care," hanging from her neck.

A hassle developed at one point when Mayor James Calloway of Menlo Park appeared before the board to complain that the cities had not been adequately involved in the advisory board's recommendation process.

"Menlo Park is particularly peeved," Calloway said. "It has the largest number of persons needing social services. You should share with the cities which have the greatest need. Why don't we rate?"

Calloway proposed that the board set aside funds for the cities and "correct a long-standing oversight."

Board Chairman William H. Royer insisted that "Menlo Park has not been overlooked." (There is a recommendation for a $67,000 allocation to the East Palo-Alto Menlo Park Information Center.)

Ward challenged Calloway's assertion that Menlo Park has the largest percentage of minority population of any city in the county.

Supervisor Edward J. Bacciochio Jr. indicated he was irritated by Calloway's comments.

"You throw something on our desk and expect us to act on it without time to think about it," he snapped. "That's hardly the way to improve relations."

County Manager M. D. Tarsches commented that Menlo Park had submitted a summary statement of needs to the advisory council, but had submitted no follow-up application for funds.

"Before I consider funding I want a formal application in writing, not a shotgun approach," stated Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald.

Royer concluded the matter by agreeing that the board will review a letter which Calloway submitted from the Menlo Park City Council and would be "happy to meet on the general subject."

Worry

that took another man's life until 10 hours later.

One of the three owners of Bogart's says that in their case the two men who left the bar, and later allegedly rammed two pedestrians, were stopped mid-route by a police officer, who let them go on their way.

These people, the plaintiffs, they're groping, putting feelers out. Bismack said. They're trying to blame somebody. How can the bar owner be held responsible?

Apparently, they're not alone. Groceries and package stores selling to minors are already being held liable by the courts, according to Yale Rohlf of the law firm Owen Melbye & Rohlf of Redwood City.

Like the bars and restaurants, they can be cited under the Business and Professions Code, which states that anyone who sells or furnishes alcohol to an habitual drunkard or to someone who obviously is intoxicated is guilty of a misdemeanor.

In 1971, the California Supreme Court first upheld a ruling holding a tavern liable for the actions of a customer who had been served too much liquor.

THE NEXT STEP. Rohlf believes, is the private individual. Can he also be forced to pay damages if, for example, a guest at a party is in an accident because he had one too many?

Brian Gill, a Redwood City lawyer who has represented many plaintiffs in similar cases, believes the answer is yes.

My advice to private individuals is to use common sense, he said. You're going to have to be careful not to unleash a potential weapon on society. What we're saying to bartenders is that when you're serving liquor, you're going to have to be careful.

Krier, the lobbyist, said he convinced Assemblyman Willie Brown to draft a bill that would require a bartender to be found grossly negligent before he can be held liable.

If the bill becomes law, the seller would have had to serve someone who was obviously drunk to be found guilty. The law now requires that the seller be found to have not exercised a "reasonable standard of care."

Gill does not believe the law needs changing.

A jury is made up of representatives of society, he said. "If the judgments weren't justified, society wouldn't put that price tag on the case. Lawyers don't decide the amount."

"You have to look at how much your salary is over a number of years, your faculties, the cost of medical care. Then look at the jury verdicts in that light. People see these astronomical figures and they don't realize what they entail."

Gill said a person who suspects that someone to whom he is serving liquor has had too much can protect himself — or at least limit his liability — by refusing to serve the drinker liquor, sending him home, or warning others that the person is dangerous.

ON THE OTHER HAND,

Rohlf, who represents bars and restaurants in lawsuits, says the cases are difficult to defend, because, normally, the suits are not filed until all the other sources — such as the drinker's own insurance — are exhausted.

One of the easiest ways to win is to have the people who are with him and are injured testify that he was served too much liquor," Rohlf said. "Both stand to gain. But it's an innocent party who's just out on the roadway, the driver is on the hook."

One way he can get off the hook is to hold the bar. Very often he will cooperate to try and hook the bar. Normally, these cases don't crop up until quite late. A lot of these customers are regulars and to try to get the bartender to remember a single night is practically impossible. Only the lost-wages portion of the settlement is taxable.

Frank Pasley, underwriting manager for Market Insurance, believes it would be unconstitutional to limit the size of judgments. But, he said it is reasonable to raise the negligence standard for bartenders in such cases.

I don't think a bar owner legitimately has a way of knowing how drunk the person is, he said. "You'd have to know how tall he is, how much he weighs, how often he drinks. I don't know how the bartender can make that judgment."

Pasley said liquor liability insurance is profitable for Market because of its higher rates, graduated scale based on the volume and type of establishment. A rural bar, for example, would have one of the highest premiums, and inspections by agents, who check to see whether the bartender will pour as long as the customer pays.

IN THE MEANTIME, with the increasing number of third-party suits, both individuals and bartenders have reason to be wary about the person to whom they serve a drink.

If you're in an accident, smile and say, "Thank you. The cash register just rung," Krier said.

There really is no answer. The only fairness is that once you know the person is getting drunk, you no longer serve him. Maybe you sold him one drink and he decides to sit and sip. All of a sudden — whacko.

There've been nights in every person's life when you can drink, drink, drink. Other nights, one drink and it hits you.

Power Outage

More than 8,000 San Mateo County electrical customers were without power Monday as an equipment malfunction blacked out an area from Half Moon Bay to Burlingame.

Most of Hillsborough was reported without electricity from 11:10 a.m. for periods of 10 minutes to nearly a half hour, according to PG&E spokesmen.

New Emergency Plan: Help in Four Minutes

By GEORGE GOLDING

A proposal for county-wide ambulance service due for discussion July 27 by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors, is just the "tip of the iceberg" in a new county plan for emergency medical services.

Best known element in the overall plan is a scheme to provide "paramedic" ambulance service, which would be available to any resident of the county in four minutes.

The supervisors are discussing this portion of the plan.

Equally important, however, is the "emergency medical service number," any citizen in San Mateo County can telephone (543-1313) when he or she is faced with a crucial health situation.

The emergency number will connect with the county's central communications center, which is pledged to quickly relay the request for service to the closest ambulance service, police or fire department, or other suitable agency.

Two years in the making, the Emergency Medical Service Plan has been prepared by the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of the county, chaired by V. Gene McDonald, and by the Emergency Medical Care Committee, chaired by Robert Hubert.

Representatives of health agencies, volunteer organizations, hospitals, ambulance companies, colleges and police took part in the planning.

A countywide "911" emergency telephone number, and the electronic system it requires, is one of the recommendations of the Emergency Medical group. The 911 number, recently approved by Governor Brown, would replace the existing emergency number.

Requirements for paramedic training of all ambulance personnel is another.

A network of radio communications — now being considered by most Peninsula cities and the county — is another. Of great use to police departments in daily service, the radio network will also provide much greater response capability in time of emergency.

Increased coordination between hospitals, ambulances, and others engaged in rescue work is urged by the group in order to cut down on the rare but sometimes disastrous losses of time that occur when a panicked citizen telephones for help, but reaches the wrong agency.

The plan includes a recommendation that in cases of true emergency nurses on duty in hospital emergency rooms should be instructed and authorized to provide immediate care.

Hospital facilities should concentrate on separating the non-emergency patient from the critically ill person, the committee says, and to meet the mental, emotional, and social needs of patients and their families in crisis situations.

Man Shot 11 Times, Survives

An argument of unknown cause between two men inside the Daly City home of a third man ended Friday night when one of the two fired 11 bullets into the other.

Police say they do not know what started the argument between Ronald Keith Levy, 23, and Thomas Lee Carter, 23, both of San Francisco. One of the two apparently insulted the other and Carter opened fire, hitting Levy 11 times, police said.

The two were in the living room of Robert Frazier of 596 Schwerin St., police said. Levy was rushed to San Francisco General Hospital where he is in stable condition.

Carter is still at large and is being sought for investigation of assault with the intent to commit murder. He is considered armed and dangerous.

New Emphasis on SSF Potential

By JANET PARKER

To Bay Area tourists zooming along Bayshore Freeway at 55 miles an hour, South San Francisco is little more than a blur.

A trip between San Francisco International Airport and the city of San Francisco by taxi, bus or rented car takes anywhere from 20 minutes to an hour — more if the visitor is caught in rush-hour traffic on his way to a downtown hotel.

There's a growing interest by South San Francisco city officials in capitalizing on the North County city's location between an airport with access to the world and one of the nation's large cities.

City leaders have informally discussed South San Francisco's potential as a convention and business site of regional significance.

But those same city officials bluntly state it will take the interest and cooperation of those who own downtown property to turn South San Francisco into a bustling and lucrative business center.

For the most part, merchants and downtown land owners agree that South San Francisco has potential but a mass effort to develop it has not materialized.

"We're sitting on top of a gold mine and we don't even know it," said businessman Milt Bronstein, who for 30 years has owned a downtown music store. "Once it comes to a head, everybody is going to want to get in on the bandwagon."

One of the city officials who believes South San Francisco's potential is sorely overlooked is John Noonan, a resident since 1947.

The city attorney says downtown South San Francisco from Railroad Avenue to Hillside Boulevard and Airport Boulevard to Spruce Avenue has a "dynamic potential."

"My concern is that all of us in city government are so close to the scene we may be unable to see the potential," Noonan said.

"Development of that dynamic potential is needed to provide an adequate assessed valuation base for the future financial welfare of the city," Noonan said.

He envisions the city hiring three or four of the nation's leading planning consultants — giants in the industry.

The team would study South San Francisco's aging downtown and give an indication of the city potential "so that we may not make a mistake of planning and developing at a level less than the full potential."

Visions of South San Francisco gaining regional or even worldwide stature actually are a revival of the same feelings more than 60 years ago.

In 1913, a study by the planning firm Haviland, Dozier and Tibbets, now yellowed with age in Noonan's office, showed how South San Francisco could turn its bayside land into a world shipping center. The study was requisitioned by the South San Francisco Land and Improvement Co. and laid

SHADES OF THE PAST

In the archives of his South San Francisco office, City Atty. John Noonan glances at the past — a 1913 report laying the foundation for the city's role as a worldly seaport.

the groundwork for South San Francisco's evolution as an industrial center.

However, visions of gaining a secure spot on the globe faded.

The 260-page report said that San Francisco Bay in 1913 had all the requirements for a great seaport and that South San Francisco could fulfill that need for $880,725.

"We are now on the threshold of the world by a different means of transportation — air," Noonan offered.

Generally, city leaders agree with Noonan that South San Francisco's location provides opportunities too good to pass up.

And, they say, failing to take any action at all to revive the downtown area could be suicidal for the business district.

In fact, Councilman Dick Battaglia, said he would vote to appropriate funds for a study of the city's potential and to put that study to work.

"We have to look at more than the next couple of years into the future," Battaglia said. He said he would like to see a major developer buy up the whole downtown area and completely rebuild — with modern office buildings, shops and a complete business complex.

A handful of merchants, led by Joe Rousso, are striving for a downtown remodeling project with particular interest in expansion of parking facilities. The City Council has appropriated $10,000 for a study of parking needs.

Merchants and property owners are planning to meet in August to discuss the future of their downtown.

However, the city officials' dreams go beyond a simple facelift project. They envision South San Francisco with sleek, modern high-rise buildings (where permissible) and travelers from across the country arriving from the airport.

Acting City Manager Frank Addiego said there are many alternatives stemming from the city's location which the city could consider.

Possibilities, he said, include development of a major convention center with meeting facilities and lodging, or high-rise offices for major industries.

Other cities down the Peninsula, such as San Mateo and Burlingame and even Santa Cruz, have remodeled their business areas to make them more attractive. South San Francisco, he said, has even greater potential but the wheels of progress just aren't turning.

"Here we are, we're just sitting," Addiego said.

Why should the city bother? Addiego says there are many reasons, including self-preservation, a better tax balance for the city, and simple aesthetics.

"If the city and merchants and property owners concur, the city would be willing to develop a plan," Addiego said. "We're sitting on a pretty nice situation and we are not utilizing it to the greatest potential."

A critical question, he said, is what the city could turn into if nothing is done. He said he fears that the kinds of businesses the city is now trying desperately to keep out — including an adult bookstore and movie theater — eventually will filter in.

City officials have informally discussed South San Francisco's regional potential with John Steen, County Convention Bureau director.

Steen admits that there is no reason for travelers to stay in South San Francisco other than it is close to the airport.

City officials, he said, are hung up on the idea that the city should have a tourist attraction if it is to capitalize on its prime location.

"My argument has always been that South San Francisco could take advantage of this if it would eliminate the attitude that it is a tourist destination, and instead consider itself a bedroom," Steen said.

An Interest In Conventions

It's very possible that tourists would leave the airport, travel by taxi to South San Francisco motels and hotels just next door and then spend the days visiting county attractions such as Marine World and Marriott's Great America — if that is the sales pitch the city wanted to use.

South San Francisco already maintains the second highest number of motel rooms in the county (Burlingame is first) with four major hotels. It just needs to reinforce that industry, Steen pointed out.

County business leaders also claim South San Francisco could better capitalize on its location.

If a community is to exist, says San Mateo County Land Development Association president Bud Bostwick, it must grow. The no-growth philosophy has taken its toll of cities, and unless South San Francisco acts, it too will go down in defeat, he said.

"I think there should be a better understanding in South San Francisco of the important role the airport plays in its economic structure," he said. "Without the airport, South San Francisco Industrial Park would be nowhere at all."

There's got to be a better understanding or a more militant understanding on the part of South San Francisco officials," he said.

Petrini's FISH & POULTRY

THE GOURMET
By Petrini's Presents

1 frozen duckling, defrosted
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 can (1 pound) fruit cocktail
1/2 cup diced celery
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups toasted (1/4 inch) bread cubes
1/4 cup diced (1/4 inch) pitted prunes
1/4 cup chopped blanched or toasted almonds

Wash, drain and dry duckling. Sprinkle 1/4 teaspoon salt evenly over body and neck cavities. Prepare stuffing. Drain fruit cocktail, save 1/4 cup syrup. Sauté celery in butter or margarine until tender. Add bread cubes and reserved fruit cocktail syrup, mix carefully. Fill neck and body cavities loosely with stuffing mixture. Skewer neck skin to back. Cover opening of body cavity with aluminum foil; tie legs together loosely. Place duckling on rack in roasting pan. Bake in slow oven (350 degrees F.) until drumstick meat is tender, 45 minutes per pound. Makes 4 servings. This recipe works well in a covered barbecue unit.

Ottobonis Enter No Contest Plea

Colma Town Councilman Raymond Dominic Ottoboni, 72, Thursday pleaded no contest to a misdemeanor election fraud which could put him in jail for one year.

His son, Raymond John Ottoboni, 35, the town's former police chief and councilman, pleaded no contest to an election fraud felony. He faces a maximum penalty of two years in state prison and/or a $5,000 fine.

As part of a negotiated settlement between defense attorneys Lois Scampini and Zerne Hanning and Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson, charges were dismissed against Mrs. Mae Ottoboni, 69, the councilman's wife.

The father and son pleaded no contest to charges of interfering with the election process between May of 1973 and March of this year. The law states that a no contest plea is paramount to a plea of guilty.

Charges contained in an earlier Grand Jury indictment involving an alleged scheme to falsify register voters in Colma were dismissed. They included five felonies against the councilman and his wife, and five felonies and eight misdemeanors against their son.

Superior Court Judge Frank Piombo scheduled sentencing for Aug. 19.

Following an in-chambers conference, Piombo ratified the disposition.

Witnesses at the Grand Jury in February alleged that the case was an attempt by the younger Ottoboni to seek a position on the council with his father in order to fire Police Chief James Dorris and form a bloc to "run Colma as they wished."

Hanning, who represented the son, told The Times that the disposition was to save the life of Mrs. Ottoboni.

He revealed that she has a serious heart condition, and that her son and husband feared that a trial could have killed her because of the pressures and tensions involved.

"That was the main factor," agreed Miss Scampini, who represented the parents.

Hanning also said that a factor on his part was an undisclosed "disabling illness" involving Raymond John Ottoboni. He declined to discuss the illness, but predicted that it would be revealed at the time of sentencing.

Sorenson said that he had vaguely heard of Mrs. Ottoboni's illness, but knew nothing about an illness involving the former police chief.

Sorenson said "my only motive (in the disposition) is to obtain convictions of primary offenders while allowing a judge a wide range (of alternatives) at the time of sentencing.

"The heavy" in the operation was Ray Jr., the D.A. alleged. "The father's part was not as substantial and did not warrant a felony. As for Mrs. Ottoboni, we believe that her part was minor, and it was doubtful that a jury would have convicted her."

Hanning said, "They (the father and son) are simply not contesting the charges

They are not admitting guilt. They feel that it was a technical violation of the elections law."

Miss Scampini asserted that the councilman and his wife "all along have maintained that they had no idea that they were violating the law."

Judge Piombo last month tossed out a conspiracy charge against all of the Ottobonis because Asst. Dist. Atty. Stanley Poling violated the law by failing to present to the Grand Jury what is legally known as "exculpatory" evidence.

That evidence, the defense revealed in open court, was tapes made by police agents of discussions between the Ottobonis, with the son assuring his parents that the bid to register four persons in Colma under a temporary residence, although the persons "pretended" to live there, was not illegal.

The parents asked several times if what they were doing was legal, and were told yes. Miss Scampini said Ottoboni junior was a deputy registrar of voters.

In that March election, the younger Ottoboni lost by one vote in his attempt to seek a council position.

Deadline Announced for Skyline's Fall Semester

In less than two months the Fall 1976 semester will be starting at Skyline College in San Bruno. The first day of classes for both day and evening courses will begin Sept. 13.

Registration materials and admission information for the forthcoming term for both day and evening classes are available at the college and in local libraries.

The initial deadline date for admission forms for day class students is August 13. Persons interested in enrolling in the day courses should contact the college as soon as possible to insure both admission to the classes and a counseling appointment.

Evening, Saturday, and continuing education students can secure the mail-in forms, schedule of classes and course descriptions brochure from the local libraries and at the college. Registration by mail for these students will be closed on Aug. 18.

The day and evening schedule of classes brochure is available free of charge at the SC Admissions-Records Office. The official college catalog can be purchased at the Skyline College Bookstore.

While there is no entrance requirement test for enrolling at Skyline College, students planning to attend the college for the first time should take the Guidance and Placement Test prior to seeing their counselor.

The next dates for the tests will be Aug. 14 and 21 in Bldg. 2 (Campus Center), room 2306. Both tests will start at 8 a.m.

Airport Flyer Route Posted

Early ridership on the new express bus route between the Daly City BART Terminal and San Francisco International Airport has been encouraging, according to officials of the San Mateo County Transit District.

Although the route attracted less than 100 passengers on July 5, its first day of operation, ridership was up to 250 per day by July 9, and appears to be climbing steadily.

Labeled Route 3B, the San Bruno Flyer, the bus picks up passengers at the airport's lower level between South and Central passenger terminals. Service to BART begins at 6:28 a.m. from the airport and runs at half-hour intervals until 9:58 p.m.

From the BART Terminal, buses leave for the airport every half-hour between 6:24 a.m. and 9:54 p.m. One stop is made enroute, at San Bruno's Tanforan Shopping Center.

Incoming buses stop at the airport's South Terminal to serve passengers on Japan Airlines, Canadian Pacific, Qantas, China Airways, Pan American, Philippine Airlines, Air Canada, Western, Braniff, Continental, SFO Helicopter, American, Air California and Hughes Airwest.

At the Central Terminal, the SanTrans coach discharges passengers for Northwest Orient, National, Hughes Airwest, Delta, PSA, United, Stoll Air and Swift Air.

Volunteers Gear Up For Summer Salvage

The Volunteers of America has extended its Summer Search for Salvage and is asking for donations of all kinds of usable clothing, shoes, gas and electrical appliances, radios, televisions, furniture, household furnishings, baby furniture and equipment, layettes, dishes, silver, office equipment and furniture, antiques, bric-a-brac and old newspapers.

Lt. Col. Raymond G. Ecklund, the executive officer, says: "We do not see any letup in the number of daily requests we receive for assistance to needy and low-income families and individuals."

"This is a time of high unemployment and inflation, and the two combine to make life harder for those already experiencing difficulties in making financial ends meet. We must continue to augment our constantly dwindling inventories of all types of merchandise in order to be ready to help whenever and wherever our help is needed.

"Donations of these various types of merchandise, discarded, outgrown or outmoded, permit us not only to render immediate, direct aid to needy, but also allow us to provide work opportunities for the men and women who assist with their sorting, classification and repair."

Donors are urged to call the Volunteers for free truck pickup appointment at home or place of business.

Pony Express Looks Good

By JOHN BORGAN
Staff Writer

The tired saw used to be that your mail would be delivered in spite of rain, hail, sleet or snow.

But we don't have weather like that here on the Peninsula very often, particularly in July.

So maybe that's why I've been getting my mail about as regularly as Don Rickles walks little old ladies across the street.

On some days, my mail doesn't come at all.

I receive Time magazine so late in the week that I now get more news from National Geographic.

Often, when the mail does finally arrive, it is almost time for dinner. I need a flashlight to find it.

I could be wrong but it is beginning to feel as though we get mail only on odd days of the week in months beginning with the letter J.

I yearn for a return to the Pony Express.

The other evening, when the bedraggled, worn figure of a substitute mailman showed up after 5 p.m. he was the picture of despair.

He clutched his pathetic load of letters and magazines and shuffled from house to house looking forlorn and depressed.

"I've worked over 13 hours already today," he moaned as he approached my house. "But it's not my fault. This isn't even my route. I work in the hills."

My neighbor and I sympathized with his plight and offered him a beer. He refused and predicted that things were going to get worse before they got better.

The acting postmaster of Burlingame, John Grant, disagrees. He says the situation is beginning to right itself.

According to him, "The problem is being taken care of. We should have enough trained people on the street to handle it soon. I think the worst is behind us. What killed us was that we had 10 people out at the same time on extended sick leave. That was in addition to the normal sick leaves and vacations."

Grant adds that he and his staff in Burlingame spend most of their time telling people why service has become so tacky.

"We spend more time on that than we do on rectifying the problem," he says.

The irony of all this is that I am getting used to being without my mail.

If I don't receive my bills on time, I don't fret. What you don't know can't hurt you. Much.

Not having to check the mailbox for potentially dire missives is a burden which has been lifted from me.

There is a certain sense of security which comes from not having your mail.

You get the impression that people are leaving you alone for once.

I may even subscribe to National Geographic.

But, if I did, I probably wouldn't get it on time.

Special DC Meet Set

The Daly City Planning Commission will hold a special meeting at 8 tonight to discuss annexation of a large chunk of unincorporated Colma, east of the Junipero Serra Freeway.

Bounded by Junipero Serra Boulevard, Colma City limits, San Pedro Road, and east to the Hillside Boulevard area, the annexation has been the target of criticism by Broadmoor Police District residents for several months.

Successful annexation of the area to Daly City would cut further into Broadmoor's tax revenues, which are needed to support the district.

Without those taxes, or state or county financial aid, Broadmoor is doomed as an independent community, many residents claim.

But many of those living within the proposed annexation area have said they want to become part of Daly City.

The target area presently is under the jurisdiction of San Mateo County and is a combination of residential and commercial zone classifications.

Included in the area is the Sterling Park neighborhood, the former Alec store, a nursery, fertilizer warehouse, bowling alley, QFI warehouse, Mercy Ambulance Co. and the Colma Fire Station.

Following the public hearings on the Environmental Impact Report, the proposal is to be sent to the Local Agency Formation Commission for action.

A Press Club Honor for Dr. Alvarez

"Dean of Doctors," "Physician Extraordinary," "America's Family Doctor," are but a few of the titles accorded Dr. Walter Clement Alvarez, who will be honored by the San Francisco Press Club at a luncheon commemorating his 92nd birthday at noon, Thursday.

Men of medicine, former patients and family and his many friends will be present as the Press Club extends him their highest honor, to be added to his 91 awards in medical research, the most recent of which is the Golden Brain Award.

The doctor has just published his 21st book, "How to Help Your Doctor Help You" — written at age 91, which will be released that day.

Consultant emeritus of Mayo Clinic, former president of the American Gastroenterology Association and editor of its journal, and Modern Medicine and Geriatrics, he is best known by his syndicated medical column for the layman.

Born in San Francisco, he returned to his home city two years ago following the death of his wife Harriet, to be near his family — two sons, Robert, research librarian in South San Francisco, Luis of Berkeley, Nobel Prize winner in physics, Gladys Muirhead of Berkeley and Bernice Brownson of Hillsborough, his two daughters and their family.

His brother, Harold Alvarez, and his surgeon wife, both formerly of U.C. Dental College, reside in San Francisco.

Kimberly Persons Is Wed

Kimberly Ann Persons made the gown and veil she wore for her marriage to John Houston Wheeler Jr. in the First Assembly of God Church, South San Francisco.

The bride is the daughter of Jeaneta Persons of San Bruno and Marvin L. Persons of Calistoga. The bridegroom's parents are the John H. Wheelers of Daly City.

This gown, worn by the bride for the evening ceremony with white cotton eyelet with three-tiered skirt trimmed in old-fashioned lace. She designed her crown of lace and seed pearls. Kimberly was given in marriage by John Epperson, a family friend.

Arabella Gan wore a gown of blue for her role as maid of honor, while bridesmaids Laurie Warner and Tamara Norwood were attired in green dresses in the same design.

John asked Courtney Gonzales to be his best man. He was assisted in ushering duties by Kenneth Wheeler and Byron Stevens. A reception in the church social hall followed the ceremony.

Kimberly is a graduate of Crestmoor High School in San Bruno. John's alma mater is Jefferson High School in Daly City.

Receives award — The Rev. Herbert Tweed presents Greg Lum the award of being an honorary member in the Program Agency of the Presbyterian Church. This award was given at a recent Sunday worship service by the Session, the official board of the Broadmoor Presbyterian Church of Daly City. Greg has completed 10 years as a teacher of the junior high youth and as a member and officer of the choir. He has served on the Session, the Board of Deacons and on various church committees. Greg works in the biology supply laboratory at San Francisco State University.

Louanne Heath

If you have given a party lately you are aware of the hours of planning and preparation required to successfully wine, dine and entertain a number of guests.

Consider, then, the boundless energy that it must have required for the Ray Schnapp family to host, not one, but two separate fiftieth anniversary parties in the span of a single week!

Obviously, if you have managed to reach that fiftieth anniversary you are "special" and special people deserve special consideration. So it was that, when the Schnapps realized that both his and her parents would reach that landmark anniversary during the same week, they decided to have two parties, honoring each set of parents.

Mr. and Mrs. John Parmeter of Los Angeles came north for the first party to help with the hosting of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schnapp of Kenwood and their family and friends. Later the same week Mr. and Mrs. William Schirmer, also of Los Angeles, arrived to help with the party for Mr. and Mrs. Amos Menichetti of San Francisco.

Daly City's Frank Galo might not be president of the Balboa Alumni Association anymore, but he is far from retired from alumni activities.

Word has arrived that he is now the executive director of the Balboa Boosters and in charge of a campaign to form a Balboa High School Sports Hall of Fame. Former high school athletes who are elected to the newly established hall of fame will be announced at a banquet in the fall. Galo is seeking nominations from former Balboans. To qualify, the nominee must have graduated five years prior to being nominated. Names should be sent to Galo, care of Balboa Boosters, 1800 Cayuga Ave., San Francisco 94112.

To date, nominations have been received for Leonard Scott, S'48; George Cantwell, S'34; George Varoff, S'36; Calvin Jones, F'68; Robert Roselli, F'49; Rich Spadini S'63; Roy Yureitch, S'36; Frank Cornebeck, S'31; Mike Fauss, S'41; Charles Martucci, S'50; Margo Reynolds, F'66; Heik Hambarzumian, F'66 and Woodward Adams, S'31.

Galo is anxious to hear from many more interested former members of the student body. If you are interested in being a part of the group which is doing much to up-grade spirit and ideals at the school you might enjoy attending the next meeting of the board of directors which will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Emily Powell Sumrall. Call the secretary, Vickie Hackett (981-5050 or 333-2718) if you want to attend.

Mrs. George San Pietro Has been appointed the new chairman of publicity for the Westlake Catholic Women. Mrs. San Pietro replaces retiring chairman Mrs. Robert Brizuela, recently named "Citizen of the Day" by radio station KABL, for her work as publicity person for the Our Lady of Mercy parish.

Mrs. Henry Martinez chaired a special meeting of the Friends of the Daly City Library to reorganize the Book Fair Committee, according to Mrs. Emmett Tierney.

The session, held in the Serramonte branch of the library, was attended by the former Book Fair chairwoman, Mrs. Alvin Schwarzbach, Mrs. Joseph Canada, book marking chairman; Arthur Armitage, Mrs. Tierney, publicity chairman, and Mrs. Albert Teglia.

Mrs. Schwarzbach has resigned her chairmanship to assume the post of membership chairman and the committee met to facilitate a change over of duties and to make preparations for the Book Fair in early October.

Donations of books and records as well as of sheet music are accepted by librarians in any of the Daly City libraries. Funds raised from the sale of such books are used to purchase additional equipment and materials for the libraries.

FOLLOWING THE SLIPPERSTEPS

Youngsters in the Daly City Civic Ballet dance classes admiringly look on as Lisa Bianchini laces her ballet slippers. Lisa, 16, will be attending a summer dance seminar at Dominican College in San Rafael.

D.C. Girl To Ballet Seminar

Lisa Bianchini, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bianchini of Daly City, has been selected to attend the two-week Forest Meadows Center of the Arts Summer Dance Seminar at Dominican College, San Rafael.

The seminar is designed for ballet and music students who have been selected through formal auditions. Students representing various parts of the United States will be in attendance.

The teaching staff will include Hector Zaraspe of the Julliard School of Dance, Margaret Swarthout and Robert Barnett, director of the Atlanta Ballet.

Lisa is 16 and a student at Westmoor High School. She is an active senior member of the Daly City Civic Ballet, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department, and has studied privately under Diane Roberts.

Three San Franciscans were arrested by Daly City police on various narcotics charges following a routine traffic stop shortly before midnight Wednesday.

Arrested near the Bay Area Rapid Transit District station on John Daly Boulevard by officers Les Keate and Mike Scott were Kenneth S. Allen, 24; Raymond Tyrone Davidson, 38; and Virginia E. Fish, 44, all of San Francisco.

At Oak Park UMC, he was founder of the New Hope Project, an inner city outreach ministry that started a federal day care center for 40 children, a free clothes closet, summer youth program, and other community needs.

He is a graduate of Sacramento State University and Garrett Theological Seminary, Evanston, Ill.

On July 26 he will continue his doctorate studies at San Anselmo Theological Seminary.

Brownout Possible in Summer Says PG&E

The possibility of requests to homeowners and businesses to cut their use of power during times of peak use this summer was raised last week by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. The summer peak load season continues through August.

Faced with one of the hottest and driest years on record, PG&E said that its emergency reserves of generating capacity on several occasions had been reduced to near minimum levels.

"We hope that a power emergency will not develop," said Joseph Y. De Young, vice president Customer Operations, "but we — and our customers — must be prepared if an emergency should arise."

"Therefore we are suggesting that every home, business, building, farm and institution redouble its efforts to conserve energy and also develop plans for avoiding heavy power use during afternoon hours of the hottest days."

The combination of heat waves and the abnormally dry year has increased air conditioning and irrigation pumping loads. These power demands, together with load growth from higher economic activity and increased population, pushed the use of electricity to all-time high peaks.

At the same time, PG&E's ability to generate power to meet these peaks has been hampered by several factors, De Young said.

The poor water year has greatly restricted the output from PG&E hydroelectric plants. Regulatory and construction delays have prevented the company from placing in operation the first of two nuclear units at Diablo Canyon.

Had that unit been in full operation this summer, as originally planned, its million-plus kilowatt capacity would have effectively averted any energy squeeze.

Also, the unfortunate problems Sacramento Municipal Utility District experienced with its Rancho Seco plant made it unavailable to the area this summer, so PG&E generation is making up the loss from this source.

During the record-breaking heat at the end of June, all available generating resources in Northern and Central California were in use, the demands were cutting deeply into reserve capacity, and all available power from outside the area was brought from both the north and south. In addition, the peak was "shaved" by 77 thousand kilowatts of power when service to certain industrial and special contract customers was interrupted for a few hours.

Had higher loads been experienced, or had there been a major equipment failure, rolling brownouts (limited service interruptions) might have become necessary, De Young said.

Peak demands occur in the summer from about noon until 6 p.m. Customers who can avoid using electrical appliances — especially air conditioners — during those hours on hot days should do so to help insure adequate electric power supplies, De Young said.

He invited customers to consult with customer operations people in local PG&E offices on ways to reduce power consumption.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Happy Birthday to The Villa Hotel

Happy Birthday, VILLA HOTEL. Yes indeed, the Villa Hotel is twenty years young this month. The festive birthday celebration will be July 26 through August 7 and you are all invited to join the happy crowds at this famous San Mateo hotel-restaurant site. The Villa Hotel will also be represented in a booth at the 1976 SAN MATEO COUNTY FAIR during these celebration dates. Stop by and see their attractive display. In the VILLA LOUNGE, entertainment features REY MANTE at the organ and piano bar for leisure listening and the CHARLIE BLACKWELL TRIO for dancing. Around-the-clock service in the VILLA COFFEE HOUSE, and luxurious room accommodations with swimming pool privileges.

ENRICO ROMANO, the pizza and Italian food Midas out Rockaway Beach way, reports a banner July. He says ROMANO'S restaurant business is the best in years. Food to eat in or take out. A real show-stopper at LEHR's greenhouse garden restaurant in San Francisco are the gorgeous arrangements of antheriums on every table. Owner MURRAY LEHR has the exotic tropical flowers flown in fresh each week from Hawaii.

Seafood and fowl also rate high mention on SCOTTY CAMPBELL's award-winning restaurant menu. As you well know, this Redwood City dinner house has long been known for its prime rib dinners and steak "as you like it." PHIL LEHR'S STEAKERY, at the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Hotel Tower, is one of the few Northern California restaurants to feature a Porterhouse steak. Thick and juicy, it is both a New York and filet, broiled right on the bone for peak tenderness and flavor. And, it is cut to order — any size — to satisfy even the heartiest appetites. If the filled-to-capacity parking lot at VINCE'S ITALIAN AND SEAFOOD restaurant is any indication of what business is like in the dining rooms and cocktail lounge, then we'd say it is lucrative. Vince's has to be one of the all-time Peninsula favorites. Nod of the week to NICK GUST. When the mention of golf or a tourney is in the air, this famed restaurateur (he owns a goodly portion of the Pacific Ocean frontage with NICK'S, THE MOONRAKER, and CAPTAIN CHARLES restaurants) is off in any direction.

SALUTE TO AMERICA

The Evettes, currently appearing at Finocchio's, a San Francisco club known world-wide for its colorful revues featuring female impersonators, snap to attention in their Bicentennial production of the "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," which is a real audience pleaser. The Evettes dance and sing several routines during each of the four nightly shows. Open nightly, except Mondays.

Burlingame's Faces Opens on Broadway

Everyone's face will be at FACES when this new Sophisticated-Disco opens on Broadway in the heart of downtown Burlingame Friday, July 23. Faces is in the music business and all the local, national and up-to-date disco and dancing favorites will be played until 2 a.m. every morning. Here, the customer's enjoyment will be of the utmost importance. Policy of the owners will be to have well trained personnel (from the local area) cater to each individual's needs. The decor will be highlighted by a sophisticated and computerized lighting system. A large dance floor will be surrounded by illuminated bleachers and an ultra-modern, mirrored disco booth suspended from a skylight. So let's face it, Faces is the place to see faces and dance any night from July 23 on. Junkets Debate By Unit

Is heavy attendance at a national or state mosquito abatement conference worthwhile, or is it a junket?

That question stirred heated debate last Tuesday among members of the San Mateo County Mosquito Abatement District Board of Trustees, meeting in Burlingame.

Their conclusion: It's worthwhile.

The district, which levies a 1 1/2-cent per $100 assessed valuation tax rate on residents from Millbrae through Menlo Park, was cast into the limelight earlier this year when eight of the 14 trustees and two administrators attended a national mosquito conference in Boston, Mass. The cost to taxpayers: $5,600.

Then, last month, the trustees, by an 11 to 3 vote, set aside another $5,600 in the 1976-77 budget for attendance at April's national conference in New Orleans, La.

The issue resurfaced Tuesday night when trustee Joe Karp, also foreman of the outgoing San Mateo County Grand Jury, lashed out at language contained in a policy proposal under "trustee responsibilities."

The statement termed trustee attendance at national and other annual mosquito control conferences "highly desirable."

It further stated, "Attendance should be predicated on program content, social significance, political atmosphere, cost-benefit ratio, location. Each trustee shall consider these factors and be allowed to exercise his judgment in the light of conscience. It shall not be the prerogative of this board to deny trustee attendance at such conferences and meetings."

Following lengthy debate, Karp spearheaded a successful drive to eliminate that last sentence.

"That really offends me," Karp said of the proposed language. "This highlights junketing, to leave to 14 trustees to decide. Congress is being blamed for junketing and we're encouraging it. As for letting your own conscience be your guide, that's appalling."

"I'm not going to let you be my conscience," fired back Richard P. Maynard of Millbrae, a trustee for 35 years. "I've gone on one trip every year for 35 years."

"I think that's deplorable," Karp countered. "I don't give a damn what you think." Maynard responded, "Half have been at my own expense."

Tom D. Harrington, a trustee selected at large by the county, said that the "trust" of the board has been toward minority rule.

He said that the issue concerning conferences had been voted upon earlier. Only Karp, trustee Eugene Sussli of San Mateo and John Bobick of Woodside opposed.

Sussli asserted, "Many people are pushing for abolition of this board and making this a policy (on travel) may provide them with the ammunition."

Redwood City Mayor Marguerite Leipzig, a mosquito board trustee who delivered a report in Boston, said to Karp, "I love you, Joe, but I'm concerned when you use the word 'junketing,' that's a little heavy, baby."

The minority view has gained press and raised concern of many public officials," asserted board chairman Reynolds Smith, an Atherton councilman.

"I have met with many of them to explain the district, and the conferences, and they have been receptive," he added.

Smith said that the attendance at the Boston conference was unusual and necessitated by a lobbying effort for a locally-backed proposal for national mosquito abatement.

Usually, four or five trustees attend the conferences, he said.

Karp asserted that the four-day meetings deal with trustee concerns for only one day, and with technical aspects the other three. That sparked a new debate on the desirability of trustees attending the technical sessions.

"The D.A. cautioned us against getting involved in the operational aspect of the district," Karp warned.

Day-Care Nursery Rejected in SSF 'Site Not Right'

A Pacifica couple's request to open a second Montessori day care nursery for pre-school children in South San Francisco was turned down last Tuesday.

Planning Commissioners Robert Teglia, Herbert Goldberg and Homer Hale voted against the day care plans, stating they felt the site the couple had chosen was inappropriate.

Liberato and Amy Gonzales already run a Montessori-style nursery at First Lutheran Church at Dolores Way and Willow Avenue.

Since the most students they can admit at that center is 20 and they've been turning away interested parents, the couple sought to open a second nursery at 658 Grand Ave.

Montessori is an incorporated learning technique for pre-school children from 2 1/2 to 7 years used throughout the United States.

The commissioners, however, said they were concerned that the single-family vacant home Mr. and Mrs. Gonzales had chosen might disrupt the neighborhood.

The home is between a medical office and a four-unit apartment building. Across the street on Fourth Lane is a 10-unit apartment building and older homes and across Grand Avenue are more homes and duplexes.

City Planner David Hale had said no more than 20 children would be permitted and suggested that not all the children be let outside for recreation at the same time.

Hale said those provisions might help to keep down noise that could disturb nearby residents.

The planner recommended that the couple's use permit could be reviewed after one year so any noise problems resulting from the use might come to light and the permit could be reconsidered.

He said the noise would not be great enough to require an "environmental impact report."

The commissioners, however, were reluctant.

Goldberg said children playing in the backyard of the house could have a detrimental effect on sick persons waiting to see doctors in the building next door.

"Children will be running and yelling and doing things children do," Goldberg said.

He sought to postpone a decision until Gonzales could tell the commission specific plans for landscaping the backyard.

Commissioner Hale noted that Grand is a busy street and it might be dangerous for the small children.

It is very possible that a parent will drop a child off across the street from the nursery and the child could get hit by a speeding car, he said.

One resident, Peter Fogland of 671 Grand Ave., said a nursery in that neighborhood would only increase a shortage of parking spaces. He also pointed out that many elderly residents wouldn't appreciate the noise.

Every time I concentrate on attempting to analyze the demise of the Giants. I am stuck with the facts that, on paper, they are better than they were last year, if for no other reasons than Ken Reitz and a year's more experience; and that statistically, they are as good or better than just about any team playing around 500 ball in the majors.

In some cases, in fact, they are better than teams who are more or less in their division's pennant race.

The Giants, for instance, have a better team batting average than the Dodgers, not that many fewer runs scored, despite the Dodger edge in homers; and, until their pitching staff's recent rocky week or so, the Giants had a better team ERA than the Dodgers! They are also out-hitting the Padres, and score about as many runs as does Pittsburgh.

The obvious answer, as we pointed out a couple of weeks ago, is in defense, where players like Bobby Murcer and Reitz and Chris Speier are making more errors than they have ever made before.

I am also certain that if the Giants' defense was better the team ERA would be better, too. Yes, it is true that pitchers do not have runs counted against their record when physical errors are made behind them.

But ERA does not take into account fly balls that should have been caught but were misjudged, double-plays which could have been turned but instead resulted in only one out, simple run-downs that are fouled up, pick-off plays that are muffed, cut-off men that are missed, ad infinitum.

...also don't account for the mental attitudes that such antics build into pitchers, who subconsciously must often be afraid to let the ball go, lest it actually be hit to a fielder.

A pitcher without confidence in the eight men supporting him might as well have had knees and a sore arm.

Logic demands that when a team has improved itself on paper and youngsters who have a year's extra experience are blundering even more than the year before on fundamentals, that the manager be blamed. And perhaps that should be considered.

But I have another theory. I study the statistics, and forgetting all of the errors, individually the Giants are about where they should be.

The pitchers who should have come through are coming through (Jim Barr, John Montefusco, Randy Moffitt, Gary LaVelle, Dave Heaverlo, Charley Williams).

True, Ed Halicki is in and out, but then he always has been.

True, John D'Aquisto is a big disappointment, but then anybody expecting a wild, inexperienced youngster like him to bounce back with 15 wins after the arm surgery he had, had to be a little bit mad.

Young Marc Hill is improving behind the plate. He was never expected to be a big average man with the bat. Dave Rader is off his 291 batting averages of the past two years, but then any team except a few like Cincinnati, Boston and the Yankees which relies on its catching to improve the offense doesn't deserve to win. Everybody on the infield is performing about as expected.

True, Speier is way off his normal hitting, but again, a team can't count on hitting from its shortstop, and I don't believe the Giants would need it if most other things were going right. Gary Matthews isn't far off his normal pace, and between them, Gary Thomasson and Larry Herndon are about approximating what Von Joshua did last year.

The key to the Giants' dilemma, we believe, is in right field. Bobby Murcer, as this is written, has proportionately hit twice as many homers as he did last year, and is on about the same RBI level as last season.

But he is 40-50 points off his normal batting average and is making more mental and physical errors than he admittedly ever thought he could possibly commit.

One might reason that a clean-up hitter's batting average makes little difference if he drives in those runs. But in Murcer's case, it makes a big difference. For one thing, there are runs batted in, and there are runs batted in.

Murcer this year has driven in many runs that haven't meant a whole lot. Last year he broke up more games with IMPORTANT runs batted in than any Giant.

Last year he scored a lot of runs not only because he got a lot of hits, but also because he walked a lot. This year, he isn't walking and isn't scoring a lot of runs. Last year he almost always got a piece of the ball, so that even if he didn't get a hit, he hit a fly ball to score a runner from third, or grounded to the right side of the infield to move a man from second to third with less than two out.

This year, he is striking out more than he ever has, and usually in the above described or similar situations.

Add Murcer missing cut-off men and throwing to wrong bases and making mistakes running the bases, and you have a situation where Murcer's performance has perhaps damaged the Giants more than any single factor. In a young player, such playing would cause only physical damage.

In Murcer's case he has also hurt the Giants mentally, because he had been looked upon as the quintessential pro. In short, and simply, he has failed to provide a good example for an exceedingly young team.

BUT ENOUGH OF BASEBALL, for the nonce. Following are statistical tables showing Warrior team statistics for 1974-75 and 1975-76. (Rebounds, assists, steals, blocks and points are figured on a per-game basis.)

	fg pt	ft pt	rept	as	tpt	stlpt	blkpt	pts
S.F.	46.5	76.7	52.1	25.3	11.9	4.5	108.5
Opps.	45.6	75.4	46.9	25.4	9.7	4.7	105.2

	fg pt	ft pt	rept	as	tpt	stlpt	blkpt	pts
S.F.	46.2	75.1	52.0	24.9	11.3	5.1	109.8
Opps.	44.4	73.6	49.0	24.5	9.0	4.8	103.1

Note that while the Warriors dropped in five of those seven statistical categories in '76, so did their opponents, which neutralized the statistical drops; that while the Warriors were better than their opponents in five of seven categories in '75, they were better in all seven this past season; and that in terms of the margins between statistical comparisons (i.e., in '75 the Warriors beat opponents by an average of 3.3 points, while last season they beat them by 6.7), the Warriors increased their margins in 76 in six categories.

Oh, hell. They lost. And that's that.

SPEAKING OF THE WARRIORS, a sudden thought. Now that it looks like the San Francisco Convention Center arena with its projected capacity of 20,000 is down the tubes, could it be that Franklin Mieli, is so hot after ownership of the 49ers because he knows that the Warriors won't be able to survive financially in the smaller Oakland Coliseum Arena and will either have to go broke or move?

50 Participate in Junior Olympics

Lesire Revolution, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department, offers a number of playground activities for children 7 to 14 years of age. Movies, cartoons, crafts, and a special weekly outing highlight the program.

For the playground or park nearest your home, consult your 1976 Summer Recreation Booklet.

Marchbanks Park held its Junior Olympics Day and it turned out to be a great success with some 50-60 children ages 6 to 16 participating in six different events: 50 yard dash, long jump, sack race, softball and football throw for distance and basketball free throw contest.

Some of the big winners in ages 6-8 were Bobby and Frances Putrizzello, Chris Guillory and Lorne Gill; for the 9-10 age group, Steve and Al Haynes and Joey Putrizzello; for 11-12 age group, Thadus Gill was a big winner capturing four first place events and also in the age 13 bracket, Billy Kinnebrew captured four first places.

Doug Banks, Ed Rose, Eugene Rose also competed. Winners in age 14 through 16 were Donny Putrizzello, Doug Levy, Rex Jackson, Emory Rose and Byron Gill placing in each event.

Marchbanks also has other events going on during the week including a softball practice and game at noon. Tuesday there are volleyball and ping pong games. Wednesday there are carrom tournaments, dodgeball, handball, four square games. Thursday is tripe day.

Friday there is a softball practice in morning, strikeout and stationary games, and at 6:15 p.m., Marchbanks Bucks softball team plays in the Daly City High School League.

Spud has been a popular game under the sun at Northridge Park. Kathy Moyle, Ray Moyle, Kelly Maderias and Julie Friend competed during the week.

Billy Moyle and Roser Zapata made spectacular throws to earn their letters. Patty Pender, Mari Pender, Jerry Lewis, Sal Navarro, Robert Zapata also participated.

There was a whiffleball tournament. Winning team members included Roger Zapata, Jerry Lewis, Sam Culver.

Runner-up team included Robert Zapata, Ray Moyle and Billy Moyle. Highlight of the game was Jerry Lewis tripling in two runs and Roger Zapata's home run. Ray Moyle had two triples for the losing team.

Wednesday there was a big kickball game with the boys competing against the girls. The boys won 13-12. Kelly Maderias had three home runs and Mari Pender hit one home run.

Patty Pender had five hits and did an excellent job in the field. Boys' stars were Billy and Ray Moyle and Roger Zapata. Outstanding fielder for the girls was Kathy Moyle and for the boys Sam Culver.

Trip day is Tuesday. See recreations leaders to register. The third weekly "Butterfingers" of the week goes to Bill Powell.

At Our Lady of Mercy playground, reliving the great days of the 1950's, OLM junior teens recently held a 50's dance-party. Dressed in bobby socks and rolled up jeans, the teens danced to the music of Sha-

Na-Na and Bill Haley and the Comets.

Participants included Marianne Boerio, Gina Chew, Ted Curry, Danny Diggins, Rene Garry, Mike Kanelopoulos, Mark Loughran, Shauna Mertens, Jim McCann, Kelly McDonald and Terry Small. Recreation leaders were Debbie Thompson and Wayne Lukaris.

The Serramonte Gym junior teen softball team pounded out a 5-2 victory over the Westmoor Park teens in their first game of the summer season.

Good hitting and tough defense made the difference as both teams played well. Adding to the win for Serramonte were Tom Daly, Jon Maderias, Robert Caliz, Barbara Maderias, Cesar Caliz, John Mignosa and Debbie Cuadra.

In the weekly carrom and ping-pong championships, Wayne Wynn regained his ping-pong title in the 14-and-over bracket after being unseated the week before.

Taking a close second was Steve Dieves with Robert Caliz placing third in Carroms. Steve Beverly won his first championship by downing second place Bob Gradwohl as Robert Caliz finished third.

In the 12-and-13 ping-pong division, Cesar Caliz was tops followed by Mike Scheffler in second and Barbara Maderias in third.

Tops at the Carroms table was "Poo" Martin, followed by Barbara Maderias and Cesar Caliz in second and third places respectively. On the 11-and-under carroms level, Martin Galindez came from behind and beat Mike Nightingale for first.

Nightingale took second while John Mignosa finished third. In ping-pong, Jon Maderias was champ with Nick Colino in second and Martin Galindez in third. Others that joined in the competition and played well were Tom Daly and Mike Maderias.

Coming events at the gym are senior high softball and a "Warball" match against Gellert Park. A new record was set last week when 15 people crunched into the telephone booth smashing the old record of 13 set last year. An attempt to break this new record is planned for later in the summer.

A slapshot from 15 feet out by Mike "Boom-Boom" Restivo broke an 11-11 deadlock and gave the invincible Yellows their second consecutive victory.

Clutch goal-keeping by Dennis "The Net" Mahoney thwarted numerous Red attacks and insured the exciting victory.

Some of the standout players included the Soldati Brothers — Tom, Tim and John, Dennis "The Flame" Flannery and Marty "Lucky" Lager.

Floor hockey matches are played on Monday and Friday mornings at 10:30 a.m. All equipment is provided.

Last Wednesday, a bicycle trip was taken to the Cliff House and the western tip of Golden Gate Park. In all, the course totaled 11 miles.

Anyone interested in participating on our next outing July 21 to the bike paths in Golden Gate Park, should contact Recreation Leader Joel Carrara. Trips start at 1 p.m. sharp.

Class on Hunting Safety Is Scheduled

There will be a Hunter Safety Course at the South San Francisco Rod & Gun Club on July 26, 27, 28 and 29. Classes will start at 7 p.m. and no one under 12 years of age will be eligible to take the course.

The Rod & Gun Club is located at the foot of Oyster Point Marina in South San Francisco.

There will be a charge of $1 per student. Sign-up will take place the first night of the course.

It is compulsory to attend all four classes in order to be eligible to receive the Hunter Safety Certificate.

Playground Olympics Set In Daly City

All boys and girls between the ages of 8-13 (as of July 1) are invited to participate representing the Daly City Recreation Department.

There will be events such as softball throw, long jump, 50, 75, 100 and 220-yard dashes, along with a 440-yard run and also a 440-yard relay team.

A track clinic for interested participants will be held at Westmoor High School on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, starting July 19 through July 30 at 10 a.m.

Is American Male Engangered Species?

Sam Chandler is on vacation until August. His column will be written during his absence by other staff members. Today's column is by librarian David Griffin.

By DAVID GRIFFIN

Is the American male an endangered species? Probably so, according to Dr. Herb Goldberg, noted psychotherapist and popular writer.

In his latest book, The Hazards of Being Male: Surviving the Myth of Masculine Privilege (Nash Publishing Co., $8.95), Goldberg argues that the presumably invincible American male is little more than a cardboard Goliath — out of touch with his emotions and his body, denying and destroying himself daily.

Goldberg, best known for the recent bestseller Creative Aggression which he co-authored with Dr. George R. Bach, pulls no punches in diagnosing the symptoms of this masculine condition.

"Our culture is saturated with successful male zombies," he writes, "playing by the rules of the male game plan. They have lost touch with, or are running away from, their feelings and awareness of themselves as people."

"They have confused their social masks for their essence and they are destroying themselves while fulfilling the traditional definitions of masculine-appropriate behavior."

When something goes wrong, Goldberg notes, these men discovered that they are shadows to themselves as well as to others.

They are unknown, he claims, because they have been so busy manipulating and masking themselves in order to gain more status: genuine encounters with other people threaten these "male zombies," causing them to flee or to react with extreme defensiveness.

Goldberg fills out the details of this general diagnosis by focusing on a number of case studies of his former patients.

Identified only by their first names, these are men who suffered breakdowns and were nearly destroyed by "role-playing masculinity" before they could allow themselves to be individuals. The case studies, besides providing the most compelling reading in the book, also tie together the various threads of his argument.

There is Gary, for example, who viewed his spouse as the perfect "Earth Mother" — passive, submissive, and totally obedient. But "Earth Mother is now dead" and Gary and men like him seem bewildered and unable to cope.

Or there is Gerald B., so committed to the virtues of throwing his energies into his work and achieving security that he gradually distanced himself from friends, co-workers, and his family. Unable to recognize and deal with his own anger at being isolated at home and at work, and — as a typically closed male — unable to share his feelings with others, Gerald felt betrayed by life.

He had done everything he had learned a man should do and had come up with a zero. Gary and Gerald and men like them illustrate the male condition in a number of appropriately-titled chapters: "Feelings, the Real Male Terror," "The Destruction of the Male Body," "The Success Trip, A Fantasy Portrait," "The Lost Art of Buddyship," "Marriage, Guilt by Association," and "Divorce, the Penalties for Leaving."

HOW, ACCORDING TO GOLDBERG, can the male break out of his harness? He must first realize that he will not be freed as a bi-product of the feminist movement.

The male must "chart his own way, develop his own style and experience his own anxieties, fear and rage," Goldberg writes, "because this time mommy won't do it." If there is any key that emerges, it seems to be Goldberg's insistence that the male must constantly reaffirm his right to develop and grow. "He must reject the situations that, even though they might sanctify his role, deny expression to his real being and his feelings."

The Hazards of Being Male is compelling and unsettling reading, all the more welcome because of the void it fills. The feminist movement in its relatively brief existence has developed a vast literature on all aspects of womanhood, most of which fulfills real and pressing needs. Goldberg's book is a first bold step toward identifying and meeting the equally compelling needs of the American male.

The Hazards of Being Male is now available at Daly City's Serramonte Library and at other public libraries and bookstores throughout the area.

Four Charter Amendments to Face County Voters Nov. 2

Four proposed amendments to the San Mateo County charter by which the county Board of Supervisors hopes to streamline and reorganize county government to a more efficient operation will be decided by voters in the Nov. 2 general election.

Placing of the proposed amendments on the ballot was authorized by the board at its meeting this week.

By its action the board directed the district attorney's office to draft specific language for the proposed amendments on the ballot. It has requested that a formal resolution containing the ballot wording be prepared for board action by Aug. 3. Final action to place items on the November ballot must be taken by the board by Aug. 10.

Supervisors John M. Ward and Jean Fassler, who acted as a committee of two to confer with County Manager M. D. Tarshes and Chief Dep. Civil Dist. Atty. L. M. Summey concerning proposed charter amendments, said there are a number of other charter amendments which should be considered for submission to the voters at the March 1977 consolidated election.

It was recommended that only four proposed amendments be submitted in November. Ward said, "because we are very conscious of the number of matters on the ballot."

The proposed charter amendments and the rationale for their submission, according to the report of Ward and Mrs. Fassler:

- Make it possible to hire persons under special programs such as the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) in either the classified or unclassified service.

The charter has no provision at this time which would allow the county to participate fully in certain special federal programs which require particular employment conditions.

The proposed change would make it possible for the county to participate in such special programs using the classified or unclassified services.

The Civil Service Commission would be empowered to take appropriate action if requested by the board, or the board could take such action itself.

- Remove the existing restriction on the board's power to segregate activities which now are combined in one county office.

The county manager's reorganization proposal and discussions held at a number of board meetings made clear the existing limitations on the board's authority to streamline county activities.

This proposal would make it possible for the board to assign functions to those departments which can perform them most effectively or to segregate consolidated functions, such as civil duties from the prosecuting functions of the district attorney's office, or the public administrator from the coroner functions.

- Provide for the appointment of department heads, except for elected officials by the county manager, subject to confirmation by the supervisors or by any other officer to whom they may report, unless the board determines that a department head should be appointed by the board.

The present charter sections contain a number of redundancies and much excess language that is too detailed for a county charter.

Section five provides for the appointment by the Board of Supervisors of a limited number of department heads, while section six provides for the appointment of other officials by the county manager, subject to confirmation by the board.

"All department heads, other than elected officials, should be appointed by the person who has the responsibility for directing their activities — the county manager or such other officer as may have supervisory responsibility over them."

These appointments should continue to be subject to approval of the board. The board should have the authority to determine if any particular department head should be appointed by the board.

- Give the board flexibility regarding the compensation of department heads, assistant department heads and non-union mid-management personnel and give the board and the county manager flexibility regarding the tenure of department heads, assistant department heads, and non-union mid-management personnel and to place physicians and surgeons into the classified service.

Board members and the county manager have discussed at length the need for more flexibility in determining compensation of department heads and assistant department heads, as well as the need for making them executives more directly responsible to the persons who provide them with policy guidance.

The proposed amendment would make it possible for the Board of Supervisors to consider all relevant factors, including job performance, when setting the compensation of department heads and assistants, the criterion of comparability.

The proposed amendment would give to the county manager and, to the appropriate extent, to department heads the power to appoint and remove non-elective department heads, subject to confirmation by the Board of Supervisors, without being bound by the rules of the Civil Service Commission concerning the procedures for selection, appointment and removal.

Department heads would appoint their assistant department heads in a similar manner.

Incumbents having permanent status in the classified service on Nov. 2, 1976, would remain in the classified service while continuing to serve in the same position.

This amendment, by replacing a sub-section which now exempts physicians from the classified service, also would carry out a requirement by the state that resident physicians or surgeons should be in the classified service in compliance with local agency personnel standards.

It was on the motion of Supervisor Edward J. Baccio Jr. that the proposed amendment was changed to include non-union mid-management personnel.

Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald wanted to even further and have the amendment referring to compensation and job performance include all county employees.

"I think the board would want to be in a position to make its own determination," Fitzgerald said.

Tarshes said that such an amendment would have "much broader implications."

"I would like to know just how to negotiate with representatives of large employee groups and establish evaluation standards and a floor of comparable salaries," he stated.

Ward contended that "to get into that area would result in delay, trying to establish job performance for all employees where no jurisdiction has developed."

Tarshes noted that the current memorandums of understanding between the county and employee groups extend through Dec. 31, 1977 and there is sufficient time to consider changes.

Fitzgerald said he would like to see the charter section which states that compensation and other benefits for employees "shall" reflect as nearly as possible the compensation and other benefits for employees for comparable conditions of employment in the municipalities of the county and in public jurisdictions in and around the Bay Area and in private employment, changed.

Fitzgerald would change the word "shall" to the word "may."

"Whether we talk about the salary of the manager or a janitor, there's a relationship," Fitzgerald said.

LSSD Time-Off Pay Dispute

Training Program Probe By HRC Ordered

An investigation of the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program in San Mateo County by the County Human Relations Office was authorized Thursday night by the Human Relations Commission.

The investigation was ordered following the appearance of James T. Ruby, 28, of Pacifica, before the commission to complain that he was docked pay by the Laguna Salada Union School District when he took time off to look for a permanent job.

Ruby, who was employed under the CETA program as a maintenance man for the district, contended that as a CETA trainee he was entitled to four hours each week to look for a permanent full-time job. The district, he complained, told him it was all right to take the time, but did not tell him it would dock his salary, which is paid with CETA funds.

Commission Chairwoman Mildred Swann noted that there have been several other complaints received by the Human Relations Office concerning the CETA program.

"I think this is a case for investigation," she stated. Phil Raffalo, a member of the North County Human Needs Council, also urged an investigation of the CETA program.

There are 200 persons in the CETA program in the county who are without representation, except for the Human Relations Office, he stated.

Commissioner Mary Katherine DeLong requested that the commission consider holding an open hearing on the CETA situation. Mrs. Swann replied that a decision could be made on that proposal after the data is collected in the investigation.

Eleanor Curry, senior staff investigator for the Human Relations Office, reported that the CETA program is so confused that some participating cities are becoming frustrated and turning back the federal funds rather than continue in view of the uncertainty of the program.

James Forrest, executive director of the Human Relations Office, reported to the commission last month that the uncertainty of continued funding is hampering the CETA program.

The program was established for the purpose of providing public service employment and training for unemployed and disadvantaged citizens.

Forrest reported at the June meeting that "no one knows who's doing what."

He said that persons who were admitted to the program for specified lengths of time have been receiving termination notices before their training is completed.

Convention Dullest—Ryan

By DEAN CHALIOS
NEW YORK CITY — "This convention was the dullest of the 20th century."

That was what Congressman Leo J. Ryan had to say about the Democratic National Convention.

Ryan, who represents the 11th Congressional District which covers a large part of San Mateo County, was here as a delegate for now Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter.

Ryan said he would like to see "no convention at all" involved in choosing the party's presidential nominee. "The need for a convention is under serious question," he said.

A system of "reasonable primaries" should be used to select the presidential nominee and a convention should be used to discuss issues and for choosing party leaders, according to Ryan.

He said that with an exclusive primary system to pick the presidential nominee, all delegates would declare who they want as the nominee, therefore eliminating uncommitted delegates who according to Ryan are unnecessary in this process.

He said this proposed process would simplify the system because the candidate who at the end of all the primaries has the most votes would be the nominee.

Ryan endorsed Carter in January of this year "because I thought he was a winner. I was sure he was a winner."

Carter will probably face President Ford in the November election, according to Ryan, because "a political party cannot oust a President." He also said Carter will win in November because "the Democrats will come out to vote."

Ryan commented that the reason he did not come out for California Gov. Jerry Brown is because "he (Brown) wasn't even in the race" when he endorsed Carter and because Carter "covered a broader spectrum."

If Carter does win in November, Ryan said his relationship with the Congress will be what it hasn't been since the administrations of Franklin Delano Roosevelt and John Kennedy. "It will be so strong you won't believe it," he said.

As far as Ryan being considered for a position in Carter's administration, he said, "I've already told him I don't want anything."

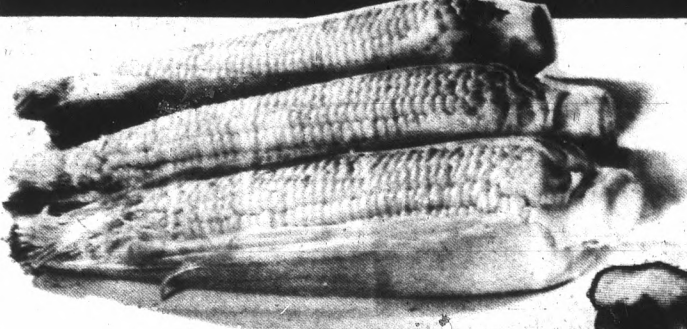

Ryan said, however, that he told Carter that the one thing he does want is the ability to be able to go to the White House and talk with Carter concerning congressional affairs.

According to Ryan, Carter agreed to his request, which he said will be necessary because after so many California leaders endorsed Brown, "California will need some advocates in the White House who are friendly."

"I'll have access to the White House and the White House staff that I expect no one else (from California) to have," he said.

Ryan stated further that he will campaign "anywhere or anyway he (Carter) wants me to." He also indicated that Carter may come to San Mateo County to aid Ryan in his re-election try against the Republican congressional nominee, Bob Jones of Belmont.

$9,000 Postal Goof in SM

A $9,000 "goof" by the San Mateo Post Office had at least one taxpayer wondering today whether such incidents are among the reasons for skyrocketing postage rates.

Postmaster James Kehoe apologized for the error but commented that it might have been the result of a faulty machine. "Outrageous," declared taxpayer Art Gibson, office manager for Financial Collection Agencies, Ltd., 100 S. Ellsworth Ave.

His $9,000 windfall troubles started on July 14 when the firm sent an employee to the postal station on Ellsworth Avenue in Downtown San Mateo with a postage meter machine and a $250 check. The machine was to be reset for that amount of postage to be used.

Gibson said after putting some mail through, he checked the dial — and blinked. It registered at $2.74.

Gibson promptly called the post office, he said, and was told to bring the meter back. An employee at the post office reset the machine, brought it back with apologies and said, "Thank you for bringing this to our attention." Gibson reported. He also left a record book to be used for keeping track of each day's mailings.

His firm started running the mail through again on Monday afternoon, according to Gibson, but the next time he checked, it registered a whopping $9,074.

"I called the post office back. The man said, 'Well, read the numbers to me,'" Gibson said. "I did, and he said, 'Well, I guess you do have $9,000. We'll send somebody over to take care of it.'"

By Tuesday afternoon, Gibson was livid.

"I could have changed the dates for some future time and used up the $9,000, but we don't do business that way," he said.

However, there are people less scrupulous who don't stop and think they'll have to pay for it in the long run with rising costs of postal service."

Meanwhile, Gibson said, in the first resetting, he had been informed the meter had used up about $150. "I don't think we even used up to $100 worth," he said.

Jack Chanteloup, customer service representative for the postal department, offered, "We would have caught up to the overage, had it been used, in due time, since we also keep records. We will certainly make any necessary corrections and adjustments. We have apologized to Mr. Gibson and can understand his irritation."

"All I can say is that these things will happen. The machines malfunction sometimes and the possibility of human error can't be eliminated — in any business."

Chanteloup said there have been cases in which meter users have gone over the amounts allowed but explained that there is a numbering dial in the machine which can't be touched. It shows the amount of postage which has gone through and when the meter is brought in for resetting any overage is caught. Records are also kept at the post office.

The machines, he further explained, are leased by the manufacturing companies to the users. The postal department only accepts money for the postage and sets meters in accordance with the amount purchased.

Quite possibly, the person at the downtown station who reset the dials might have made an inadvertent error. Meanwhile, the postage meter remains in Gibson's hands, and he has been told to go ahead and use it for the sum he thinks remains due him.

Postmaster Kehoe added, "You know, of course, that we are all being run ragged in the offices and on the routes. Since last July, because of budgetary cutbacks, we have lost 32 people. Believe me, we are working short-handed. Under such pressure, people can make mistakes."

Fringe Benefits More Important Now

By DUANE SANDUL and RICK SULLIVAN (Second of Series)

Fringe benefits can hardly be termed fringe anymore.

Public and private employers are paying more and more for employee benefits.

But how much of a fringe are the fringes?

San Mateo County Manager M. D. Tarshes says that it costs the county about 19 per cent of each employee's salary for employee benefits.

For example, if a county employee earns $1,500 a month, the county is paying $285 a month for his benefits.

Redwood City recently raised its tax rate by 7 cents — five of which were necessary simply to pay increases in public employee retirement benefits.

The county operates its own retirement system. Municipalities contract with the State Public Employees Retirement System (PERS) to provide retirement to city workers.

The financial requirement for fringe benefits in cities is greater than in county government. Many cities add about 30 per cent in benefits beyond an employee's salary. So, for a municipal employee earning $1,500 per month, the taxpayer pays another $450 monthly for benefits.

San Bruno City Manager Gerald Minford has budgeted for the 1976-77 fiscal year some $500,000 to pay for the city's contribution to public employee retirement, including Social Security.

As of July 1, San Bruno is paying 8.52 per cent of the salaries of all city workers except police and fire personnel, to PERS. Most cities pay a similar percentage.

Those employees of the county and the cities, also pay percentages of their own salaries into the retirement system — 7 per cent by city workers.

San Bruno is paying 11.1 per cent of firemen and police officers' salaries to the state retirement system. The amount which these public safety employees pay depends on their age.

According to San Bruno Finance Director Robert Bodeman, next fiscal year taxpayers will pay 27 cents on their tax rate just for retirement benefits.

While the Bay Area Salary Survey attempts to make comparisons of salaries between selected governments and hundreds of private employers, it makes no comparisons between private and public fringe benefit packages.

However, there is a growing interest in developing comparisons, according to county civil service officials.

And it should be noted that most private firms do not require employee contributions to retirement programs.

Ross Conti, county treasurer and member of the county Retirement Board, says, "In the public sector, we're still contributory, but I doubt that in the private sector one can retire after 10 years."

He reports that several female employees work for government for 10 years and retire with full benefits.

Gerald Minford

Also at the government level, retirement pay is based on the highest 12 months of salary for county workers and the median of the last three years' salary for municipal workers.

Most private employers don't have such lucrative scales, according to Larry Armstrong of the Government Research Council, a taxpayer agency which draws members from industry and small businesses.

Armstrong points out that unlike private industry, government increases retirement pay for public employees as the cost of living jumps.

Conti says that public safety workers have even more lucrative retirement plans "because the legislature felt that agencies should get young, agile-bodied people."

For instance, it is possible for a peace officer with a certain number of years with a department to retire at or near full pay.

And an officer can, say, retire from the Pacifica Police Department after 10 years and then go to work in Menlo Park and receive his retirement as well as his full pay.

State law additionally provides that if law enforcement employees develop any heart difficulties it is presumed it was caused as a result of their work. So a policeman with a heart disability at any age can retire at half pay.

For example, a 38-year-old officer with a heart murmur could retire and receive $9,000 of his $18,000-a-year salary. He could then obtain a license as a private investigator and earn what he can. The disability, which "forced" his retirement does not hamper his ability to work in a related field.

Other benefits provided public employees differ from jurisdiction to jurisdiction, depending on what is negotiated. Here is a listing of benefits for San Mateo County's 4,000 plus employees.

Employees receive one day of sick leave per month, and can accumulate that leave indefinitely. When an employee retires, the county will pay for one month of health insurance for each day of unused sick leave up to a maximum of 10 years.

Employees earn 13 days of vacation for their first five years, 16 days for five to 10 years, 19½ days for 10 to 15 years, 21 days for 20 years and 22 days for over 20 years of employment.

The county pays for employees' health benefits, plus some benefits for the employees' dependents. They can choose Kaiser or Blue Cross.

The county has three dental insurance plans, providing full coverage for the employee and his dependents. The plans cost the county from $12 to $15 per month per employee. The employee contributes nothing.

Life insurance and disability insurance policies are also provided. The disability need not be job-incurred.

Oddly, the county contract allows employees to take a minimum of six minutes of vacation or sick leave. Max Meyer, assistant to the county manager, says the contract is worded in that manner for computer purposes — six minutes being 1/10th of an hour.

If any department head approved a six-minute vacation he should have his head examined," Meyer adds.
